DETAILED ACTION

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 102

1. The following is a quotation of the appropriate paragraphs of 35 U.S.C. 102 that form the basis for the rejections under this section made in this Office action:

A person shall be entitled to a patent unless –

(b) the invention was patented or described in a printed publication in this or a foreign country or in public use or on sale in this country, more than one year prior to the date of application for patent in the United States.

2. Claims 1-3 and 5-7 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 102(b) as being anticipated by Brain 5,241,956.

3. As to claim 1, Brain teaches a laryngeal mask assembly comprising: a tube; a mount at a patient end of the tube; and an annular sealing cuff extending around a patient end of the mount (see figure), wherein the tube and mount are molded together as an integral, single-piece component (col. 8, lines 10-18).

4. As to claim 2, Brain teaches a laryngeal mask assembly according to claim 1, wherein the sealing cuff is attached with the mount by an adhesive (col. 8, lines 49-62).

5. As to claim 3, Brain teaches a laryngeal mask assembly according to claim 1 including an inflation line opening at one end into the sealing cuff, wherein the inflation line extends in a groove along an outside of the tube, and wherein the sealing cuff is inflatable and deflatable via the inflation line (see figure).

6. As to claim 5, Brain teaches a laryngeal mask assembly comprising: a tube; a mount at a patient end of the tube; an inflation line extending in a groove along the tube; an annular sealing cuff extending around a patient end of the mount in communication with the inflation line (see figure), wherein the tube and mount are molded together as an integral, single-piece component (col. 8, lines 10-18), and wherein the sealing cuff is attached with the mount as a separate component (col. 8, lines 49-62) and is adapted to seal with tissue in the region of the hypopharynx (see figure).

7. As to claim 6, Brain teaches a method of manufacture of a laryngeal mask assembly comprising the steps of: molding a tube and a mount integrally with the tube (col. 8, lines 10-18); and subsequently attaching a sealing cuff with the mount (col. 8, lines 49-62).

8. As to claim 7, Brain teaches a method of manufacture of a laryngeal mask assembly comprising the steps of: molding a tube and a mount integrally with the tube (col. 8, lines 10-18), the mount being of generally shoe-shape and having a patient end extending at an angle to an axis of the tube (see figure); and subsequently attaching a sealing cuff with the mount (col. 8, lines 49-62), the mount being shaped such that the cuff can seal with tissue in the region of the hypopharynx (see figure).

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 103

9. The following is a quotation of 35 U.S.C. 103(a) which forms the basis for all obviousness rejections set forth in this Office action:

(a) A patent may not be obtained though the invention is not identically disclosed or described as set forth in section 102 of this title, if the differences between the subject matter sought to be patented and the prior art are such that the subject matter as a whole would have been obvious at the time the invention was made to a person having ordinary skill in the art to which said subject matter pertains. Patentability shall not be negated by the manner in which the invention was made.

10. Claim 4 is rejected under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as being unpatentable over Brain in view of Sato 5,392,774.

11. As to claim 4, Brain teaches a laryngeal mask assembly according to claim 1. It should be noted the Brain fails to specifically teach wherein the tube and mount are molded of polyurethane. However, Sato does teach the use of polyurethane. Therefore it would have been obvious to one of ordinary skill in the art to allow the easy insertion and allow the tube to conform with the shape of the oral cavity (col. 4, lines 14-24).
